

The Native American Center of Excellence Lecture Series presents

Cultural Safety in Health Care

Dr. Amy Stiffarm
Ph.D, MPH

APRIL 3rd, 2024

Payne Family Center Room 103

12 p.m. - 12:55 p.m.

Dr. Stiffarm is the Director of Native American at the Montana Coalition for the Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies. She is a member of the Aaniiih (white Clay) Tribe of the Fort Belknap Indian Community. She also is a descendant of the Chippewa Cree and Blackfoot Tribes of Montana. She received her Master of Public Health from the University of Montana. Amy earned a PhD in Indigenous Health at the University of North Dakota in 2023. She specializes in Maternal Mental Health issues in American Indian communities. She is so excited and grateful to work with HMHB in supporting mothers, pregnant people, and babies across Montana.

Zoom option available, Please Register for the event: LINK

Native American Center of Excellence

NACOE is an HRSA-funded grant program housed at UM, that aims to grow the number of Native American healthcare providers statewide and increase overall healthcare providers in rural areas across Montana. Most pharmacists practicing at the Indian Health Service, Tribal Health, and other facilities across Montana are Skaggs School of Pharmacy alumni. This four-year grant will bolster continued efforts to increase Native clinical and campus-based faculty, support research to help alleviate health disparities, and provide cultural training relevant to health care and behavioral health.

www.umt.edu/nacoe

Skaggs Building, Rooms: 242-244
Phone: (406) 243-4573
Email: brittney.hunter@mso.umt.edu